Download jdk-13.0.2_windows-x64_bin.exe

- 5) Download and install the program. It's over 100 MB and may take a few minutes.
- 6) Go to mattcraig.org
- 7) Click on the simulation you want to download it.
- 8) Find the .jar in your downloads folder and open it.

You will get a warning “this file may be harmful to your computer”. As a safety precaution, laptops will give that warning for any executable file you download that's not officially from the Apple store / Google store / Microsoft store.

Windows user: click run anyway and you're gravy

MAC user:

Double click on it and have it show you the error message. After getting rejected, go into your settings and go to security. Down the page it will tell you that you tried to run “simulation.jar” and it will give you the option to “open anyway”.
